What Trenty Provides.

By the terms of the treaty, as origi-nally framed, Nicaragua would grant in perpetuity to the United States the exclusive rights for an interoceanic canal through the San Juan River and the Great Lake of Nicaragua, or by way of any other route over Nicaraguan territory

Article 2 of the treaty proposes that "In order to facilitate the protection of the Panama Canal," and the rights contemplated in Nicaragua, Nicaragua shall lease to the United States for ninety-nine years the Great Corn and Little Corn Islands, in the Caribbean Sea, and rights to a naval base on the Early in the present administration. Secretary Bryan proposed to the Sen-ate committee that the treaty be amended in such a way that the United States would procure virtual control of Nicaragua through a protectorate similar to that exercised over Cuba. He would add to the treaty features similar to the "Platt amendment" relating to Cuba. To this proposal there was considerable opposition in the committee, and it is expected to be revived

Under the proposed plan of amending the treaty Nicaragua, besides granting the canal and naval station rights, would agree:

That war should not be declared without consent of the United States.

That no treaties be made with foreign governments that would tend to destroy her independence eign governments a foothold in the re-

That no public debt would be con tracted beyond the ordinary resources of government.

That the United States should have the right to intervent at any time to preserve Nicaraguan independence or to protect life or property

Elisha Atkins Awaits Coming of Revenue Cutter.

New York, March 15.—With her lower sails stripped, her rudder head carried away, and short of provisions as the result of running into a heavy gale, the four-masted schooner Elisha Atkins, of Bath, Me., from Tampa, Fla., to Baltimore, was spoken late yesterday in latitude 36.52, longitude 71.48 by the steamer Verdi, which arrived here from South American ports to-day. Captain Penrice, master of the Verdi, reported that he had sent a boat with provisions for immediate needs to the Atkins, and had then notified by wireless the United States Revenue Cutter Service and the agent of the schooner at Baltimore. When last seen by the Verdi the Elisha Atkins was heading west under favorable weather.

Captain J. D. Wildof, of the Revenue Cutter Service in this district, who received the wireless message from the Verdi, sent word to Washington that the revenue cutter Itasca, of this station, was in Delaware Breakwater and short of coal, and could not go to the assistance of the Atkins.
